Tamil Nadu Chief Minister K Palaniswami dismissed the claim that he had ordered the assault on opponents, but limbless in the capital as he led a public protest demanding enhanced security for his cabinet colleagues. Ahead of his rally, Palaniswami tweeted: "I am not a cow that can be flung into the field of a mahant (elder) and killed." The Office of the Mahanta of Tirunelveli, J Jayendra, denied the allegation and said "Palaniswami has gone to rally the rural poor from the capital." Jayendra had earlier described the assault on his colleague, Jayalalithaa, a former AIADMK General Secretary, in April last year as unfortunate. The grand alliance of eight political parties that contested the May elections challenged the election results. Palaniswami claimed victory, but three judges of the Supreme Court on July 22 disqualified over 30 AIADMK MLAs, leaving the UPA with a wafer-thin majority. Palaniswami, the Chief Minister, led a public rally to raise the issue of the attack on his ministers and the assault on former chief minister J Jayalalithaa. The BJP expressed "shock" at the assault and said it was trying to identify the assailants. The ruling DMK also said the assaults on its leaders were "sad and distressing". The DMK said it was "deeply hurt" by the "brutal attack on the elected leaders". Jayalalithaa had alleged that Palaniswami was involved in a criminal conspiracy, prompting a police crackdown on her supporters and her murder or disappearance. "This is a grim reminder of the dark days we lived through in the past." The DMK called for an independent commission of inquiry to investigate the attacks on its ministers and demand a CBI probe into Jayalalithaa's murder. The Centre was forced to set up a judicial probe into the former chief minister's death. Color-coded representation of light
