Now that the voting is over, the modeling is taking place. Big news, as the cover of the latest issue of ScreenCrush summarizes. The contenders below (as well as other upcoming cover portraits like the first three) are the most glamorous of the crop, but there's also a cr me de la cr me of fairly traditional stars along with younger ladies like Kat Graham, Addison Timlin, and Connie Britton. And this is a year of scantily clad cover models, so why not? The glamorous covers below. Sarah Paulson and Kerry Washington Paulson is on the cover of the January issue of Glamour. We believe it's the first time the fashion magazine has featured an acting cover, and we're excited about the idea, especially after the spate of articles in the last year bashing the fashion industry for its lack of talent. It's a truly remarkable thing to have a blonde actress, fresh out of her Tony win for Thoroughly Modern Millie, on the cover of a top fashion magazine. This is a triumph, and we're pleased for her. It's also a rare opportunity to see Paulson in two different roles. It's the first time since the Emmy-winning role of Olivia Pope on Scandal that we've seen Paulson in the guise of a lawyer. But the actress has done a lot of really great legal roles in her career, playing Angela Vidal in Legal Eagles and Susan Mayer in Damages, so it'll be interesting to see what she does in this new environment. Her co-star Washington (best known for playing the force-of-nature Maya on Scandal) plays the legal secretary in The Good Wife, and Glamour has previously done covers featuring television stars. The last time it was Jennifer Love Hewitt on the cover, which was very summery. So it'll be nice to see a Scandal/Good Wife crossover in a new context — Glamour's a much more grown-up magazine than its sister publication, People, and we'll be eager to see what Washington brings to the table./* * Copyright 2000-2016 JetBrains s.r.o. * * Licensed under the Apache License, Version 2.0 (the "License"); * you may not use this file except in compliance with the License. * You may obtain a copy of the License at * * 0cc13b0f012

The book is available for purchase as a Kindle book, a Kindle audiobook, and a paperback on Amazon.com and can be previewed on Amazon.com in Kindle or in "Preview" mode. God of War II is an epic adventure game for PlayStation 2 which was released in 2007. God of War II is the second game in the God of War series developed by Santa Monica Studio. It continues the story of Kratos, the Spartan general from God of War, and his search for the ruthless God Ares. This article will examine this downloadable content from a narrative standpoint, comparing and contrasting it with the original God of War. Synopsis Kratos' bloodstained boots leave him no choice but to seek the aid of Athena, the goddess of wisdom and war, to combat the murderous Ares. In doing so, Kratos will soon face a number of long-held enemies in an attempt to locate the Book of the Dead. This article will examine the original God of War as well as the downloadable content set in this game's extended universe. God of War Characters: The Mark of Atreus The original God of War presents Kratos as an experienced warrior and the protagonist of the series. Outside of the first game in the series, Kratos meets only Ares; in the first game, however, Kratos has an extended combat encounter with his sister and her lover, the assassin Atreus. The story set within God of War II makes Atreus a more prominent character than Kratos, a feat that the narrative potential of the latter's introduction could have done nothing to aid. The addition of Atreus not only weakens Kratos' position as a character within the series, but provides a character with a more nuanced background and motivation. Atreus is especially relevant in light of the destruction of the Amazons that takes place in this game's storyline. Whereas this destruction has little relation to the original God of War story, the extended universe that takes place after God of War II has a greater stake in the female characters of this series, an aspect that underscores how little the original God of War presents Kratos' history with the female characters of the series. Kratos Meeting With The Goddess Athena In the original God of War, Kratos is on a quest to destroy the world's biggest monster, the Titans, and it is his father, Zeus, who answers the call. In the extended story
