Adobe Photoshop, whether the free version or the paid version, is used for a variety of image editing and graphic design purposes. Many web designers use it for pre-editing, post-processing of images or retouching. Some artists use it to create new artwork and comic book artists use it for comic coloring. It is used by photographers to crop and process their photos and graphic designers use it to craft posters. While Photoshop is among the most popular images editing programs, as far as we know, no one knows exactly who created it. Who created Photoshop? Who created Photoshop? The right answer may be a mystery but a lot of speculation exists. Popular opinion is that Adobe's version of Photoshop was developed by Dirk Ahlers. Ahlers was the creative director at Adobe during the 90s and is responsible for many popular features such as layers, blend modes, sharpening, hue and saturation. Many tech websites and bloggers speculate that Adobe first developed Photoshop a decade ago. Photoshop was first announced in 1994 at a design conference in Boston. The company held a nationwide hunt for a new name for the program and they discovered the name "Photoshop". In early 1995, tech blogger John C. Dvorak suspected that the creator of Photoshop was John Knoll. Dvorak cited his knowledge of the product and his desire to see a real job offer for Photoshop. In a letter from 1995, Jon Knoll wrote: "Yahoo! I'm holding myself available to do it.". In 2001, Photoshop Classic CC was launched which celebrated the 20th anniversary of Photoshop. At the time, Adobe CEO John Warnock called Photoshop Classic a "gamble" and said the company should have been "more aggressive" in building the company. A lot of websites claim that Adobe CEO John Warnock was the one who said "Nineteen ninety-five was our year of the [Software] upgrade. The creation of Photoshop was all about creating the biggest and the best product in the world, not about incremental updates or "innovations." There was also a great deal of debate about who actually wrote Photoshop. In a post from 2008, popular tech blogger John Gruber described the main elements of Photoshop as "mostly nouns, adjectives, and especially verbs." John Knoll's name has come up in many posts about Photoshop from 05a79cecff

8 So.3d 982 (2009) Bettye BROWN, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated v. HARTFORD LIFE AND ACCIDENT INSURANCE COMPANY. No. 2009 CA 0617. Court of Appeal of Louisiana, First Circuit. April 22, 2009. Rehearing Denied May 30, 2009. *983 Carey J. Ellis, LaPlace, LA, Kenneth A. Gaines, New Orleans, LA, for Plaintiff-Appellant, Bettye Brown. Thomas J. Roberts, Baton Rouge, LA, for Defendant-Appellee, Hartford Life and Accident Insurance Company. Before PARRO, KUHN, and DOWNING, JJ. KUHN, J. In this matter, plaintiff, Bettye Brown, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated, appeals the trial court's grant of defendant's motion for summary judgment. For the following reasons, we affirm. FACTUAL BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY Plaintiff, an insured under a Hartford Life and Accident Insurance Company (Hartford) life insurance policy, sought benefits and medical coverage following the death of her spouse, James Brown. Hartford denied her claim, asserting that the policy was not in effect at the time of his death. Plaintiff filed suit, alleging she was entitled to coverage because she was married to James when he applied for the policy; that Hartford did not honor its promise to insure her because the policy was never actually delivered; and that defendants failed to perform under the terms of the policy by failing to renew it. Plaintiff also asserted a claim for breach of fiduciary duty on the part of Hartford on the theory that it owed a duty to her to procure insurance on her behalf as a beneficiary under the policy. Hartford answered the petition, denying liability on its terms and asserting, inter alia, a motion for summary judgment pursuant to La. C.C.P. art. 966, seeking dismissal of the claims against it. After determining that an insurance policy had been issued to James Brown, defendants filed a motion for summary judgment. Defendants contended that the court should grant the motion because plaintiff had failed to comply with a condition precedent to coverage—renewal of the policy. Plaintiff opposed the motion, asserting that as a minor, a condition precedent to *984 coverage could not be enforced against her. Plaintiff also objected to the motion

Distribution of epitopes of the maternally transferred antibody during pregnancy in the sheep. The humoral immune response to the reticuloendothelial system (RES) autoantigens, asialoagglutinin (ASA) and globulins, was studied during the growth of the fetus and placenta in the ewe. The distribution of epitopes of the maternally transferred antibody of ASA and beta-globulin class was studied from early pregnancy, through the term, to the placenta by the ELISA technique. The results showed that antigen binding activity of the antibody to asialoagglutinin was present from early pregnancy to birth. Epitopes were distributed continuously in early and mid pregnancy. However, epitope deposition on the placenta was not observed until term. The reason for the delay in epitope deposition may be due to the absence of placental tissue. The antigen binding activity to the beta-globulin was observed from early pregnancy to the placenta. In contrast to the results with the asialoagglutinin, the active
