A father was shot in the head by a man who had been arguing with him over the weekend, and died on the way to the hospital, authorities said. Police in Bedford, New York, said that they arrested a man in connection with the death of Justin McDougall, 35, and charged him with second-degree murder. The police arrived at the home in Bedford around 1 p.m. Sunday. Bedford Police Chief Edward P. Mullen said that police saw McDougall lying on the ground with his head bleeding. "A short time later, the man who shot the victim was outside," Mullen said. According to the Bedford Police Department, "the suspect was arguing with the victim when the argument escalated and the victim was shot in the head. The victim was transported to the local hospital where he was pronounced deceased." The man was taken into custody in Fairport. He was charged with second-degree murder, and was being held without bail.

McDougall had an arrest record for domestic violence. He was arrested twice in 2012. That year, he was charged with misdemeanor charges of assault and endangering the welfare of a child after his girlfriend told Bedford police that he was "choking, banging and shaking" her and putting her in a headlock during an argument. In 2014, he was charged with misdemeanor charges of domestic violence after an arrest in the Village of Bedford, according to the Bedford Police Department. A neighbor, who didn't want to be named, told the the New York Daily News that he spotted McDougall as he was running to the home where the shooting took place. "He looked like he was in shock. He looked like he was running from the house. He was running toward the police," the neighbor said. "I'm sorry for the
